We have no need of other worlds. A single world, our own, suffices us; but we can't accept it for what it is.

1. Executive Summary

On October 21, 2013, the inaugural day of the 5th Joseph Conrad International Literature Festival, Krakow was designated a UNESCO Creative City in the field of literature. This international recognition celebrated the diversity of the city's publishing sector; quality of educational programmes; vibrancy of literary events and festivals; quantity of libraries, bookstores and cultural centres; strength of its book market; depth of its translation initiatives; spectrum of public and private sector activities in literature; as well as the very central role played by literature, drama, poetry in the development of modern Krakow.

Oh, I adore Krakow – for not by the stones is my distress caused – by living men. Nothing shall shake my spirit nor transform it, nor shall my inner fire stop to burn, since its roots in Faith rest that englows my thought with rosy dawn and wakens me. And every time you throw a stone at me, you build a mound – with me on top of it.

Stanisław Wyspiański, Translated by Joanna Bilmin

As a result of the designation, the Krakow UNESCO City of Literature Programme, implemented by the Literature Department of the Krakow Festival Office, was developed to provide support for the sector and its development. Since 2013 the Programme focused around 10 priority tasks¹, including to:

1. Integrate a diverse literary sector
2. Create links between literature and other creative industries
3. Shape attitudes to reading and literature
4. Organize literary events and festivals
5. Support the development of the book industry
6. Improve conditions for the presence of literature in public space
7. Expand scholarship programmes
8. Strengthen connection between literature and human rights
9. Deepen international cooperation
10. Develop literary education programmes

It must be said that the designation opened doors and the subsequent programme helped to systematize the slew of activity percolating in the city. Throughout the past four years, integration has taken place on many planes. The city has introduced more appropriate financial and management mechanisms and structures that ensure transparency and vision for responsible development of the book market and literary industries, including the UNESCO City of Literature Development Strategy. Consequently, the third sector has been emboldened to take charge in this City of Literature and create long-term strategies for itself and the literary community. The city has also introduced a new, coherent management system for public libraries in Krakow, administered by Krakow Library [Biblioteka Krakow], a new municipal institution that serves as a consultation and information platform, provides an integrated loan system and a single Krakow Reader Card, and runs local cultural events. The Reader of the Year Award further incentivizes reading and use of the public library system.

Education has been at the heart of the City of Literature Programme, offering literary and cultural education for all social and age groups, using such tools as the Creative Writing Courses as well as training and professionalization services for the sector, like librarians, publishers and booksellers. Together with the sector, dozens of projects with national and international scope were launched, many at the intersection of two or more creative fields like new media, film, video games, music, art and more. The ReadPL campaign that engages nearly 500 cities in Poland and worldwide could not have been possible without the cooperation of over 20 publishers. The Support Programme for Independent Bookstores in Krakow is the result of collaboration between the city, private business and the third sector, and the Programme for the Support of Literary Debuts, including the first in Poland award for Debut of the Year, called the Conrad Award, is unique in its holistic approach. As a result, the City of Literature Programme has contributed to strengthening the sector and ensures further engagement. From local literary initiatives held in hospitals, Second Life of the Book, and prisons, Reading Lessons, to several hundreds of activities organized as part of the Conrad International Literature Festival, Miłosz Poetry Festival and many more, Krakow is buzzing with events that aim to promote literature and reading. Home to the Polish Book Institute and the largest International Book Fair in Central Europe, Krakow is a global centre for literature. The city’s residency and grant programmes continue to open the city and its citizens to the world, especially the International Cities of Refuge (ICORN) Programme that offers shelter for persecuted writers in Krakow. Freedom of speech and expression is central to this city of open gates and the diversity that the UNESCO Cities of Literature represent a great opportunity for intercultural dialogue, exchange of knowledge and experience and learning.

Bearing in mind the depth and breadth of measures and initiatives since 2014, the future is bright for Krakow. In 2018 the Regional Literature Fund will be initiated to support not only literary activities as well as publications connected to the tenants of the Krakow UNESCO City of Literature Programme. The flagship project for 2018-2021 continues to be the building of the Centre for Language and Literature, called Planet LEM and inspired by the life and works of science-fiction writer Stanisław Lem. And as the city will be tackling these monumental projects and other international ones concerning everything from literary education to literary tourism, in June 2018 Krakow will undertake the role of host for the UNESCO Creative Cities Annual Meeting along with Katowice UNESCO City of Music.

Krakow is a city for which literature is the basis of identity and the foundation of its sustainable development. It is actively involved in the international literary movement, constantly expanding its literary heritage based on the creativity of its past, present and future generations of the people, cultivating the diversity and quality of the creative sector connected with the book and literature. The City of Literature designation has immensely helped to catapult and integrate the city around its common mission and we look forward to an exciting future.

3.5 Financial and/or in-kind support provided to UNESCO Secretariat:

In 2014 the call for applications to host the UCCN Secretariat was launched by UNESCO and with the intention to make a tangible contribution to the network, Krakow proposed a bid which included the provision of an 8 person team and over 500,000,00 USD annual budget for the management of the network by 2018. The city's offer also included free infrastructure and administrative services for the physical location of the Secretariat, bringing the total financial and in-kind proposition to nearly 700,000,00 USD. It was later decided that the Secretariat shall remain in Paris and the city's bid was turned down.

Krakow provides ongoing support for the management, communication and visibility of the UCCN year round as the chair of the Cities of Literature and active member. The city implemented a management structure for the subnetwork that creates 3 work groups focusing on strategic areas of development: development and integration, communication and promotion, and project cooperation. As the Chair, Krakow oversees the work of all the groups and manages all relevant processes not covered by their activities. Moreover, Krakow promotes the Network on its dedicated website and social media pages, print materials, as well as during literary events, international conferences and more. Therefore Krakow's contribution to the support of the Secretariat has covered a vast spectrum of activity.
3.8 Membership of the Steering Group and period:

Krakow has acted as the Cities of Literature representative in the Steering Group, as well as the subnetwork’s chair since April 2014.

3.6 Participation in the evaluation of applications (number of applications evaluated per year):

Krakow has acted as the coordinator of the evaluation process in 2015 and 2017. The process involves all member cities evaluating all the applications. Nearly 30 applications have been evaluated in the past two rounds, with 11 member cities involved in the evaluation process in 2015 and 20 in 2017. Krakow also regularly advises and mentors interested and applicant cities.
MAJOR INITIATIVES IMPLEMENTED AT THE LOCAL LEVEL TO ACHIEVE THE OBJECTIVES OF THE UCCN
4. Major Initiatives Implemented at the Local Level to Achieve the Objectives of the UCCN

Summary of the main initiatives, partnerships, measures and policies implemented to achieve the objectives of the UCCN, as detailed in its Mission Statement, during the last four years.

While Krakow UNESCO City of Literature application details the institutions, programmes and initiatives that were already ongoing in the city, the following are the main actions that have been established or developed as a result of the UNESCO Creative Cities title. Subsequent appendixes detail further updates.

Legend:

The UNESCO Creative Cities Network objectives:

1. strengthen international cooperation between cities that have recognized creativity as a strategic factor of their sustainable development;
2. stimulate and enhance initiatives led by member cities to make creativity an essential component of urban development, notably through partnerships involving the public and private sectors and civil society.
3. strengthen the creation, production, distribution and dissemination of cultural activities, goods and services;
4. develop hubs of creativity and innovation and broaden opportunities for creators and professionals in the cultural sector;
5. improve access to and participation in cultural life as well as the enjoyment of cultural goods and services, notably for marginalized or vulnerable groups and individuals;
6. fully integrate culture and creativity into local development strategies and plans.

Supporting writers first attempts at success on the literary market has become one of the strongest focuses of the City of Literature programme in Krakow. To realise this goal three projects were prepared and are ongoing, each one focusing on a different stage of development of the writer in Poland.

The Conrad Award, the nationwide award for emerging writers, is a unique accolade on the Polish literary map. The 30,000 PLN prize is granted every year at the Conrad Festival, and the winner is selected not by the jury, but by the festival audience. The award is supposed to support aspiring writers, but also provide an incentive for publishers to make bolder investments in emerging writers. The award is granted by the City of Krakow and its partners include: Polish Book Institute, Tygodnik Powszechny Foundation and Krakow Festival Office.

The Promoters of Debuts initiative also belongs to this programme, which aims to support young literature. It is a Polish Book Institute project, carried out jointly with the Tygodnik Powszechny Foundation and the Conrad Festival. It is addressed to institutions that publish works by emerging writers and its aim is to help financially incentivize greater investment in these writers. The winning publishing house receives a cash prize of 10,000 PLN to cover costs associated with the first edition of the book.

The third element of the programme is the UNESCO City of Literature Creative Writing Course, which encapsulates a holistic approach to talent development. Aspiring writers have the unique opportunity to develop their skills not only under the guidance of accomplished and established authors but also specialists from the publishing sector: editors of the largest publishing houses, literary agents, PR experts, and a creative arts psychologist. At the end of the course the three best participants are recommended to key Krakow-based publishers by the organisers. The project is realised thanks to the financial support of the National Centre for Culture in Poland.

On January 14, 2016 the city council adopted the first programme in Poland to support cultural activities in bookstores - a municipal competition addressed to non-governmental organizations. This incentivises cooperation between the third sector and small businesses on activities that turn bookstores into modern cultural centres. Among the successful projects, which have received support, are the Festival of Independent Bookshops (Fundacja Kopernika); Champion Bookshops (Krakowskie Księgarnie na Medal – Fundacja Miasto Literatury), and Reading Clubs (Fundacja Poemat).

The projects aim to support the Krakow book market by integrating, coordinating and implementing a rich program of cultural events in Krakow’s bookstores. This will improve the situation of bookstores, which will acquire additional tools and methods of promotion, enrich their cultural offerings, attract new and diverse audiences in all age groups, build lasting relations with readers.

Moreover, the city broadened the provisions of a resolution that authorises business owners to receive preferential rental prices, even ½ of the market price, in municipally owned buildings to bookshops-cafés conducting cultural activities. The provisions also expanded the programme for protected industries, to include bookshops.

But the support for bookshops hasn’t stopped there. The Read Local campaign, a promotional initiative, provided independent bookstores with free gadgets that encouraged readers to buy more books. The Bookstore of the Year award was initiated in 2017 to celebrate the highest quality bookstores in Krakow, with five selected per year following a public plebiscite. Lastly, the City of Literature Programme organises the Krakow Antiquarian and Second-Hand Booksellers Fair, a cyclical, outdoor event where these businesses can gather, sell their books and enjoy greater promotion.

LITERATURE AND FILM

- Film adaptations of books or films inspired by literature that were supported financially by KUCL 2014-2017:
  - Uwikłanie – A Polish crime film from 2011 directed by Jacek Bromski which was based on Zygmunt Miłoszewski’s crime novel of the same title.
  - I'm still coming back. Portrait of Ryszard Krynicki – a documentary film directed by Adam Sikora, devoted to one of the most outstanding Polish poets of our time.
  - Pod Nocnym Aniołem – Polish drama from 2013 directed by Wojciech Smarzowski, based on the novel by Jerzy Pilch of the same title. The film was made in Krakow on the corner of Felicjanek and Mała Streets in the Cafe Szafe bar as well as in the towns of Brzesko and Nowy Sącz.
  - Fanatyk – short film based on copypasta. It is the story of the choleric who hates the world and commits himself solely to freshwater fishing. The narrator of the film is addicted to the internet and a socially withdrawn son.
The Krakow Library was created as a result of the merger of four independent library branches: the Krowoderska Public Library, Nowa Huta Public Library, Podgórska Public Library, and the Public Library in Krakow. By decision of the City Council, since 1 January 2017 the Krakow Library constitutes one self-governing organizational unit. The new institution carries out statutory activity throughout 57 branch libraries operating in the city. The scope of the Library's tasks includes cultural and educational activities, knowledge-sharing, as well as providing access to library materials and services. Since June 2017, the Library administers the journalism club Pod Gruszką. In the same month, the Library became co-editor of the Krakow-based monthly Krakow and organizer of the Krakow Book of the Month Award. In October 2017, the first issue of Biblioteka Krakow was published. In 2017, on the 100th anniversary of the death of Antonina Domańska, the Kraków Library decided to set up a nationwide "Yellow Ciżemka" Award for best book for children and young people.

ReadPL is the largest campaign in Poland to promote reading and the first of its kind in the world. Thanks to it, public transport stops turn into e-book rental zones. To use them, one can simply download the mobile application and then scan with its help the QR code on the poster. In 2017 the project took place in 30 cities as well as 450 towns where schools have joined the project. Over 7000 posters and e-lending tools will allow for the free rental of e-books and audiobooks. This year's edition has also taken place in 10 Creative Cities, including Barcelona, Dublin, Dunedin, Dundee, Edinburgh, Lviv, Norwich, Nottingham, Prague, Reykjavik. The campaign was created by the Krakow Festival Office, the operator of the Krakow UNESCO City of Literature programme, and the online platform Woblink.com. The project was financed by the Ministry of Culture and National Heritage.

Encouraging readers of all backgrounds to enjoy reading is one of our key aims at Nottingham City of Literature, and more widely as part of the UNESCO Creative Cities Network. With this in mind, the Read PL! Campaign was perfect for Nottingham, which has a large Polish community, and Krakow's lovely posters gave us an innovative way to engage this group using new technologies. We're always keen to engage with audiences in a variety of different languages, and being a UNESCO City of Literature allows us to share expertise and reach diverse groups within our own city and beyond.

Conrad International Literature Festival

The Conrad Festival is the largest international literary event in Poland and one of the largest in Central Europe. Since 2009 the festival is organised annually by the Tygodnik Powszechny Foundation and the Krakow Festival Office. The idea is to create a festival of the largest possible scope and range, that is widely recognised around the world for its innovation, creativity and diversity of programme. In 2016, the Conrad Festival found itself on the London Book Fair Excellence Awards shortlist as well as among the festivals named for the 2016 International Festivals and Events City Award received by Krakow. Moreover, in 2017 the Conrad Festival was distinguished with the EFFE Label.

The list of distinguished guests of the festival is long and includes such greats as Svetlana Alexievich, Orhan Pamuk, Paul Auster, Jonathan Franzen, Jaume Cabré, Boris Akunin, John Banville, Etgar Keret, Jeanette Winterson, Yuri Andrukhovych and Amos Oz as well as the Polish headliners, such as Hanna Krall, Wiesław Myśliwski, Olga Tokarczuk, Marek Bieńczyk, Eustachy Rylski, Krzysztof Varga, Andrzej Stasiuk, Dorota Masłowska, Wojciech Jagielski, Magdalena Tulli, Michał Witkowski, Justyna Bargielska, Jacek Dehnel, Krzysztof Wodiczko and Zygmunt Bauman.

The festival welcomes guests from all over the world, representing various cultures and worldviews as well as cultural disciplines, including film, theatre, music, visual arts and more. The goal is to put world literature front and centre, represent various perspectives and ways of describing the world, which result from different experiences, and initiate intense artistic and social discussion relevant for our times. The participants of the organised debates, workshops, film screenings and theatre performances, concerts, exhibits, literary walks, interactive city games have the opportunity to immerse themselves fully into literature from a variety of angles, expanding their knowledge and co-creating the literary landscape that exists in Poland. Besides the main programme of the Conrad Festival, since 2017 the Conrad Festival After Hours programme has been introduced and literary events take place throughout the year and outside the confines of the Festival. The International Book Fair in Krakow is held parallel to the Festival and attracts tens of thousands of book enthusiasts every year.

Miłosz Poetry Festival

The Miłosz Festival is a time when Krakow enjoys and celebrates poetry. It’s the largest such festival in Poland. The history of the festival dates back to 1997, when Czesław Miłosz and Wisława Szymborska (both Nobel Prize in Literature winners) became the honorary patrons of the Krakow Meeting of Poets of East and West. In 2009, five years after the death of the Nobel Prize winner, it was decided to organise a festival that would bear Miłosz’s name and be inspired by his work. Jointly organised by the Krakow Festival Office and the City of Literature Foundation, the festival, originally held every two years, is organised on annual basis as of 2015. The festival brings together translators, literary critics, researchers, and the greatest poets from different countries and generations.

The OFF Miłosz segment of the Miłosz Festival is a platform of expression dedicated to young and independent poets and creators who are not afraid of literary experiments and embrace less traditional forms of poetry, slam or performative poetry, spoken word, rap or hip hop, song-writing. At OFF Miłosz’s core are educational activities for students of middle and high school, intercultural and creative exchange between international poets and educators with the Krakow community and integration of the local young and emerging poetry scene by building an environment for them to thrive and providing tools necessary for the improvement of their craft.

Children's Literature Festival

A nationwide celebration of children's literature taking place in four Polish cities -- Gdańsk, Krakow, Poznań, Katowice. Founded in 2014, this festival aims to raise future generations of book lovers. CLF has taken place in more than 80 festival locations, hosted 200 guests, organized 300 events (and that's just a rough count!), and welcomed over 22 000 audiences.

During the Children's Literature Festival the prize for the best Polish book for children is granted. The winner receives 10 000 PLN and a statue of Ferdinand the Great.

OTHER LITERATURE FESTIVALS

- Non-fiction Festival – is the only reportage festival in Poland, bringing together literature, photography, film and radio in a celebration of all that is non-fiction.
- Krakow Comics Festival – an open and free event, offering a comic book fair, workshops, lectures, film screenings for children, youth and their parents – everyone who loves comic books
- KFASON – a festival dedicated to horror, thrillers and crime novels
- Hæ!wangarda International Experimental Literature Festival – a celebration of avant-garde, experimental and unconventional creative work. Participants have the opportunity to get to know a wide array of the most interesting developments in digital literature. Organised by the Ha!art Corporation
- Jan Błonski Literature Festival – focuses on essays and literary criticism

International Book Fair in Krakow

The largest national publishing and book-related event in Poland, dedicated not only to the industry, but above all to readers. The beginnings of the Book Fair in Krakow go back to 1997, when 140 exhibitors took part in the event. Today, there are over six times more of them – the 20th edition of the Book Fair in Krakow in 2016 brought 700 exhibitors together and almost 800 authors. And the number of visitors growing every year with nearly 70 000 in that same year, which is proof of the good condition of the Polish book market. The Fair is promotionally combined with the Conrad Festival, forming a creative platform of cooperation for publishing houses, institutions, and media.

ICORN Programme

A residency programme for writers persecuted for political and philosophical reasons in their home countries, which was initiated by Salman Rushdie and his idea for a global network of shelter cities. Krakow is one of the nearly 70 member cities of the network since 2011. Until 2017, 7 writers from countries such as Iran, Egypt, Turkey, Belarus, Libya and the Congo have stayed in Krakow as part of this fellowship programme organised by the City of Kraków, the Villa Decius Association and the Krakow Festival Office.

- Poetry Port: Kraków-Reykjavik – A mural featuring quotes by Polish and Icelandic poets on the facade of Krakow's old salt port

Other Key Initiatives

Writers in Motion – An audiovisual library of interviews with local and international writers. Prepared and conducted by doctoral students of the Faculty of Polish Studies of Jagiellonian University under the supervision of experienced literary critics. Writers in Motion brings a fresh look on the issues of contemporary literature. Interviews are made available in Polish and English under an open license and enrich the documentation of the literary life of Krakow. Eleanor Catton, Svetlana Alexievich, Robert Hass, and Boris Akunin have been among those interviewed. Listen to the interviews here.
City Codes – Inspired by the "Word from a Bench" project in Reykjavik, Krakow has unveiled 180 literary benches dedicated to the most important writers and poets associated with the city since 2014 along the Planty Park, a greenbelt around the city centre. Their patrons include: Jan Kochanowski, Joseph Conrad, Wisława Szymborska, Neil Gaiman, as well as Szczepan Twardoch and Ziemowit Szczerek. Each bench features a slate with an author’s name and a QR code that directs the reader to a website where it is possible to learn about the author and listen to an audio recording of his or her text. Krakow’s publishers have participated in this project by contributing archival materials, as did the authors themselves, who have recorded fragments. Thanks to this, it is possible to hear the voice of Czesław Miłosz, Ewa Lipska or even Graham Masterton. Meanwhile, Jagiellonian University students translated dozens of fragments of literary texts into English. Listen to the fragments here.

Literary Walks - A series of exceptional walks through the streets of literary Krakow initiated in 2014. Every last Saturday of the month, those interested for a walk around town can move in the footsteps of the most intriguing and captivating authors and famous protagonists from Krakow and explore diverse stories about the city, its literary trends and contexts. These thematic walks include tours of second-hand bookstores – in connection with the World Book and Copyright Day, Czesław Miłosz’s Route, and "City of the Future" an exploration of Literary Nowa Huta. More information can be found here.

Books Not Dead / Talks Not Dead - literary broadcasts. The broadcast’s authors bring life to the traditional format of discussions about books and culture. In each episode, they discuss one book with one guest (BND) or provide the recording and commentary about the key literary events taking place around the city (TND). They are obsessed primarily with literary novelties, although they're so punk that they constantly go back to the classics. You can check them out on radiofonia.net.

Reading Lessons – It started as an educational programme for teens, which was based on engaging young people in analysis of selected literary works and lectures conducted by critics, writers and translators. Since 2017, the programme has been expanded to include reading lessons held in prisons and hospitals.

I open the window: it's a June day, there are lights gleaming on the river they call the Vistula. There are bridges, towers with domes green as trees, there are trees like green towers, there are blue trams full of people, of their voices. There are all the voices there can be, there is everything there can ever be, and only this is truth: don't hope for more, don't ask, it's time to grow up, to be like a child on the threshold of a mystery open before you

Bronisław Maj, Translated by: K. Kietlińska & D. Malcolm
SAGA Writing Workshops – An educational project entitled Saga, which is a series of creative writing workshops addressed to seniors. The workshops are led by experienced writers and journalists, providing knowledge about diverse literary genres, introducing writing techniques, and activating participants to share their own knowledge, experience and skills. More information at: www.saga.villa.org.pl

Second Life of the Book – A cyclical free exchange of books, which has been permanently incorporated into the cultural calendar of Krakow and includes special thematic editions, co-organized with universities and national institutes. SLB is also organized throughout our large network of bookshops, clubs and restaurants, hospitals and social welfare centers, as well as literary festivals and institutions, which ensures that we reach as many readers as possible.

Jump into a Book – An online literary program about niche literature set in De Revolutionibus Bookstore, a place for poetry, young literature, books about science, physics and religion, as well as children’s literature from around the world. Writers and literary critics discuss their books and the series is available on YouTube and the UNESCO City of Literature website.

MAJOR INITIATIVES IMPLEMENTED THROUGH INTER-CITY COOPERATION TO ACHIEVE THE OBJECTIVES OF THE UCCN
5. Major Initiatives Implemented through Inter-city Cooperation to Achieve the Objectives of the UCCN

Drop the Mic: Nordic – Baltic Slam Poetry Network 1. 3. 4.

The Nordic-Baltic Slam Poetry Network Project aims to build an international platform of cooperation between writers, poets, and songwriters, as well as the festival organizers and promoters of slam poetry and performative literature that support them, in order to: discuss existing work and trends; support one another; promote work to a greater audience; identify the similarities and differences between slam poetry traditions in the participating countries and develop a sense of regional community as a result; and work towards common international cross-cultural projects in the future. Thus far the network has helped to circulate works, resources and talent for greater diffusion of knowledge and best practices and develop new ideas that will lead to the production of new experimental works and further development of the field. The Network is composed of the following partners: Reykjavík (Iceland), Tartu (Estonia) and Copenhagen (Denmark), Krakow (Poland) and Heidelberg (Germany).

Anchoring ICORN 1. 3.

Anchoring ICORN is a network based on the participating members of the International Cities of Refuge Network (ICORN) in the Baltic Sea region, which aims to expand knowledge sharing platforms between BSR countries as well as the EU Eastern Partnership region, build promotional strategies of the region’s integration activities of persecuted writers and literature and human rights principles, as well as to prepare a foundation for future development of the network in the respective partner countries, region and joint initiatives. The cities of ICORN offer shelter for persecuted writers and artists seeking safety from governments and political oppression. Partners include: Växjö (Sweden), Krakow and Lviv.

Engage Young Producers: Poetry is My Language 1. 3. 5.

Engage Young Producers is European project coordinated by PEN Català (Barcelona) aimed at working with small to medium-sized literary institutions to help them to find innovative and creative ways to truly interact with young people. Poetry Is My Language is a year-long educational initiative run as part of this larger project (2016-2019) in districts outside of Krakow’s city centre, including Nowa Huta and Podgórze. It aims to encourage creative expression among youth, to promote thoughtful dialogue, to engage with youth on subjects related to freedom of expression, democracy and community, as well as those that they consider most relevant to the development or impediment of those subjects. Creative writing and festival production workshops will be held under the tutelage of theatre specialists, rappers, Polish and international poets, and festival producers. Participants will have the Miłosz Festival stage to showcase their work and final projects. Project partners include also Writers Centre Norwich and Der Fria Ordert Hus in Växjö, Sweden. It is supported by the Creative Europe Programme.
Krakow City of Literature Residency Programme 1. 3. 4.

The Krakow UNESCO City of Literature Residency Program is dedicated to young and emerging writers from the Cities of Literature of the UNESCO Creative Cities Network. The Program was created with the belief that the Network provides an excellent opportunity to develop interconnections, boost mobility, and offer professionalization services for writers. It aims to promote the Cities of Literature Network, provide writers with a platform to showcase their work and talent to a Central European audience, support greater diversity of voices and literatures on the Polish and Central European book market and offer local writers the chance to create links with international writers as well. Since its inception, Krakow has welcomed three writers from Reykjavik, Edinburgh and Norwich.

Less is More 1. 3. 4.

LIM, Less is More, is a European platform for project development of limited budget feature films. In the past few years, a growing proportion of the most creative and interesting feature films in international independent cinema have been produced within the framework of severely limited budgets. The aim of LIM is to help writers and writer/directors integrate cost constraints into script development. LIM does not define limited budgets in accounting terms, as such conditions vary from country to country, according to economic context. LIM offers a new generation of filmmakers, already known either for their short films or first feature films, the opportunity of designing their own route into limited budget feature film production.

The project is led by Le Groupe Ouest and developed in partnership with Control N (Romania), Vlaams Audiovisueel Fonds – VAF (Belgium), Krakow Festival Office – KBF (Poland), and the Transylvania International Film Festival – TIFF (Romania). It is supported by Creative Europe – MEDIA Programme of the European Union.

Multipoetry 3.

From 2014-2015, on the corner of the Main Market Square and Bracka Street, one could read the poems of the UNESCO Cities of Literature. The project Multipoetry. Poems on walls took place during the first week of every month on the wall of the Potocki building at the Main Market Square. Poems from the Creative Cities in Literature: Dublin, Edinburgh, Heidelberg, Dunedin, Granada, Prague, Iowa City, Melbourne, Norwich, Krakow and Reykjavik were displayed. The poems were projected in Polish and English. The organisers of the literary event were the Krakow Festival Office and the Poemat Foundation.

The legend of an eerie, astral apparition spread throughout Poland – the apparition of Wyspiański. The legend of the city of painters, the city of stained glass, the city of poetry, the city of graves, the city of life, the city of art - the city of Cracow.

Tadeusz Boy Żeleński, Translated by: P. Deryło
MORE COOPERATIONS ON WITH CITIES OF LITERATURE:

• Snapshots from Cities of Literature during Reykjavik Reads Festival (Iceland) – An exhibition of words and images from eighteen Creative Cities of Literature, including Krakow, at the Reykjavík City Hall.

• Literary Tram Poetry Project, Ulyanovsk (Russia) – promoting literature through public reading in public transport. Krakow participated.

• Literary Advent Calendar, Norwich (England) – An online campaign coordinated by Norwich UNESCO City of Literature to celebrate libraries by sharing photos of libraries from across the world on social media feeds. Krakow’s Arteteka Multimedia Library was represented.

• Bus Poetry, Tartu (Estonia) – A selection of texts from 12 Cities of Literature, including Krakow, printed on transparent window stickers in Tartu public buses. The cities chose the texts that were translated into Estonian and the poetry stickers were designed in Tartu UNESCO City of Literature.

• Postcards from Cities of Literature, Melbourne (Australia) – online promotional campaign that promoted Cities of Literature UNESCO and unexpected, cool facts about the cities, including Krakow.

• Finnegans' Wake, Dublin (Ireland) - To mark the 75th anniversary of the publication of James Joyce's Finnegan's Wake in 2014, each of the seven UNESCO Cities of Literature at the time produced short films based on the novel. These were shown in Dublin in May at various festivals in each city. Krakow’s can be seen here.

• Residency Programme, Prague (Czech Republic) – Dominika Słowik, one of Krakow’s many talented emerging writers spent two months on the literary residency in Prague.

• CROWD in Krakow – a literary bus with writers traveling all across the Europe – from Finland to Hungary – visited Krakow with 8 writers that took part in specially prepared literary events. The project was coordinated by Lettrétage, Berlin (Germany).

• Finnegan's List / SCHWOB – Every year, the European Society of Authors publishes a list of under-translated or forgotten works called Finnegan's List, made of recommendations from 10 prominent writers from around the world. In 2014 the List was revealed in Krakow during the Conrad Festival.

• Leith Poetry Projections, Edinburgh (Scotland) – 11 Cities of Literature contributed poems to be projected onto Leith’s busy Constitution Street. A different poem from a different city was projected each night for 11 nights.

• Cities of Literature Cookbook, Dunedin (New Zealand) – A digital cookbook that was created in celebration of the 2016 UCCN Annual Meeting. Recipes were inspired by foods featured prominently in literature from each City of Literature.
PROPOSED ACTION PLAN FOR THE FORTHCOMING MID-TERM PERIOD OF FOUR YEARS
6. Proposed Action Plan for the Forthcoming Mid-term Period of Four Years

6.1 Presentation of a maximum of three initiatives, programmes or projects aimed at achieving the objectives of the Network locally

Planet LEM: Centre for Literature and Language and LEM 2021 Programme

As per Krakow’s bid for the UNESCO City of Literature designation, for the past four years the City of Krakow has been in preparation to build a leading centre for creative writing, innovation, translation, education and research, which it plans to open by 2021. It will be supported and strengthened by a partnership network developed in Krakow, Poland and around the world. Planet LEM will play the role of a creative and financial catalyst for national and international projects, focused on the artistic, social and commercial aspects of creative writing, literature and translation. Planet LEM will pursue its mission through the development of the following roles and tasks.

1. To serve as a local, national and international platform for exchange, connection and integration of diverse literatures, cultures, languages and literary traditions;
2. To act as a centre for social innovation for the city and the Małopolska region, which will support key partners, educational institutions and the third sector in meeting their goals;
3. To support industry networks, especially between aspiring talent and the publishing world, and create opportunities for professional development for the literary creative industry;
4. To create a dynamic environment where new business models, literary forms and educational strategies will be developed;
5. To be a meeting place for readers of all ages and backgrounds.

Planet LEM will be a place that will not only pay homage to Stanisław Lem, but also attempt to physically execute some of his ideas and creative ambitions. Planet LEM will combine literature with broader philosophical and artistic reflection as well as new media, technology and design. This space is to become a new architectural icon of Krakow and a multifunctional space, in which completely new activities will be realized. It will attract a mass audience, primarily with its interactive, virtual reality, permanent exhibition that will present the history of Krakow’s speculative literature. It will also be the place where major literary undertakings of the Krakow UNESCO City of Literature Office will be carried out.

Starting in 2018, the LEM 2021 programme will be implemented to prepare the ground for celebrating the centenary of Stanisław Lem’s birth. It will include a dedicated programme in urban space, mobile application and virtual maps, exhibitions, murals, interactive parks, lecture and seminar series, new publications, film screenings, IOT conference, LEMCON 2018 convention on contemporary fantasy and science fiction and a new website called LEM2021 dedicated to speculative prose.
Within the next four years, along with the Jagiellonian University, KUCL will develop the Miłosz Institute in Czesław Miłosz's last apartment in Krakow, in which he lived for 10 years and which the City of Krakow is in the process of procuring from the Miłosz estate. Educational, literary and research activities conducted jointly with the Faculty of Polish Studies will be carried out as well as short-term residency programmes.

The Krakow UNESCO City of Literature Publishing Fund will be a new mechanism under which grants will be awarded to publishing projects that reflect the tenants of the UNESCO programme. In 2018, the following publications will be supported under the fund: premiere publications of poetry in the translation for the Miłosz Festival, a series of new publications around Stanisław Lem (including the first biographical publication about Lem for the youngest readers); publications related to the celebrations of the Year of Zbigniew Herbert, and publications prepared for the Conrad Festival. Moreover, select new publications will be published under the patronage of the KUCL programme, providing significant promotional benefits. The fund will be expanded over the next four years to not only support local publishers, but also those in the Małopolska region.

Other initiatives:

• Books for Babies: Gift package for Krakow newborns. Every child born in Krakow will receive a library card, information about literary programs for children aged 0-3, a book and library information. The programme will be implemented jointly with the Krakow Library.

• Preschool Literary Programme: New development programme for preschool libraries and their modernization as well as literary workshops for preschoolers and trainings for teachers.

• Support for Independent Literary Magazines: New mechanism for financial and promotional support as well as mentoring initiatives for digital and print magazines.

• Innovation in Culture and Creativity Award: Municipal incentive and seed-funding for cultural, social and technological innovations with the possibility to be implemented in the city.

• Literary and Publishing Sector Mapping and Review: a study of the current state of the industry and book market, mapping of the sector, and outline of the challenges and opportunities ahead of the sector in Krakow. To be conducted in 2020.
6.2 Presentation of a maximum of three initiatives, programmes or projects aimed at achieving the objectives of the Network on an international level, particularly those involving other member cities in the Network

Write the Game

Write the Game is an innovative, comprehensive and interdisciplinary project that focuses on video game development among young creatives and emerging talent. As part of the project, Cities of Literature will host script-writing workshops, Cities of Music music composition for video games and Cities of Design computer animation and video game design. All partner creative cities will host summer schools, lectures, workshops, individual meetings with mentors and study visits to some of the most interesting game studios in Europe. The project presupposes an international exchange of experts and trainings carried out by long-standing practitioners. Among the Polish partners are Reality Pump Studios, CD PROJEKT S.A. and Game Desire. It will dedicate an educational and workshop offer to high school students as well as women in the industry. One outcome of the project will be an original video game that will be premiered during the Audiovisual Forum held in Krakow as part of the Film Music Festival with the original music played live in concert to the video game on screen.

Audience Development in Literary Tourism

Audience development is one of the key challenges that cultural organisations currently face. As part of the ADLit project, which aims to be funded by the Creative Europe fund and coordinated by the Norwich Business Improvement District, Krakow UNESCO City of Literature will join the Writers Centre Norwich, Municipality of Obidos, and Reykjavik City of Literature on developing a toolkit that will help to understand existing municipal strategies, to develop literary tourism and to build stronger brands as Cities of Literature. Together the partners will evaluate current perceptions and attitudes, collect data, analyze brand needs and assets, compare case studies and demonstrate the value of the distinctive literary features that each partner city possesses and how it can best utilize them for the development of tourism and visibility of these features. The toolkit will be shared with the Cities of Literature, with the potential to be used by other Creative Cities wishing to evaluate their own literary and creative tourism.

Do the Map! Mapping the City: Literary Education Programme for Children and Youth

A Creative Europe project dedicated to educators, librarians and literary and cultural organisations looking to develop activities for our youngest readers. The European programme aims to find new ways of engaging children and young adults in literary activities around literature, identity, interpersonal communication, skill development and other creative fields, such as new media. As part of the Mapping the City project children and young people from partner cities will be involved in discovering the literary heritage and contemporary scene in partner cities, primarily through speculative fiction, fantasy and science fiction in particular.
Other initiatives:

- StorySmash: A programme that connects creative writing, reading and video games which engages 11-25 year olds. Initiated and coordinated by Nottingham UNESCO City of Literature, Krakow will send an expert that will lead a Master-class session in 2018.

- Sleipnir Travels to Krakow: The Icelandic mythical horse called Sleipnir will travel to Krakow for our Children’s Literature Festival, as part of the digital project coordinated by Melbourne and Reykjavík: www.sleipnirtravels.com/.

- Anchoring ICORN in Europe: The Anchoring ICORN programme will be expanded to include an ICORN writer exchange during literature festivals among the European ICORN cities as well as an ICORN coordinators mobile roundtable in order to get best practice and knowledge moving around the continent.

- Drop the Mic: Nordic-Baltic Poetry Network: The programme will be expanded beyond the pilot to a three year project that will involve not only slam poets, but also songwriters and other poets. The exchange will also initiate more local educational activities for young people in the partner cities.

- Polish Creative Cities Residency Programme: A residency programme for cultural managers from the Creative Cities Network that will be hosted in the Polish Creative Cities: Krakow, Katowice, Łódź.

- Independent Publishers and Booksellers International Roundtable Series: Cyclical event series that connects independent publishers and booksellers from the Creative Cities Network.
Estimated annual budget for implementing the proposed action plan

The Krakow UNESCO City of Literature Office, which is composed of an eight person team (Appendix 1) and operated by the Krakow Festival Office, receives an annual budget from the City of Krakow. This budget is supplemented further by national and international funding, with the Ministry of Culture and Cultural Heritage acting as one of the main contributors.

The following table represents the consolidated budget prognosis for the next four years. Staff costs are covered by the base budget provided by the Krakow Festival Office and approximate 44 400 PLN per year. Staff costs are therefore not included in the totals presented below.

Several of the projects and programmes listed in the above sections will be funded by national and international funds, including:

- Ministry of Culture and Cultural Heritage
- Ministry of Education
- Creative Europe Programme,
- Nordic Kultur Point
- Swedish Institute
- Visegrad Funding
- International cultural institutions in Krakow
- Foreign consulates in Krakow
6.4 Plan for communication and awareness

The basis for the Krakow UNESCO City of Literature programme is communication and ensuring that it functions well both internally as well as externally is central to KUCL's mission.

In order to ensure that the City of Literature is properly connected locally, nationally and internationally and that the flow of information between audiences and stakeholders is undisrupted and effective, the KUCL Office has developed and will continue to develop the following tools and mechanisms:

- Cyclical consultations and roundtables with literary sector representatives
- An KUCL Ambassadors Programme\(^2\) for citizens and creative sector representatives
- Cooperation with local, national and international institutions (see Appendix 2) on promotional activities
- LiteraTURA, monthly literary event calendar
- Key publications, such as the Krakow Literary Guide
- Krakow UNESCO City of Literature website and social media
  - Website (90 000 users in 2017)
  - Facebook (9786 followers, Nov. 2017)
  - Twitter (1361 followers, Nov. 2017)
  - Instagram (1669 followers, Nov. 2017)

And more…

Furthermore, KUCL commits to the implementation of the Communication and Promotion strategy and action plan created by the subnetwork’s Working Group in order to guarantee cohesion, network unity and visibility. For a fuller plan for communication and awareness building, please see Appendix 3.

\(^2\) Inspired by the wonderful programme developed by the Writers Centre Norwich, adopted for the KUCL context.

Appendix 3: Strategic Plan 2017 – 2021

As a member of the UNESCO Creative Cities Network, Krakow aims to actively contribute to the implementation of the Agenda 2030 and the sustainable development goals, specifically by galvanizing its local communities, national and international partners, and literary and creative industries to engage in a wider project of co-creating the city. In our understanding language and literature are among the basic tools for building a modern society. Reading books is not only fun and entertaining, but it also has a functional value: it expands one’s knowledge and understanding of the world, develops imagination, reflection, empathy and creativity, and builds a sense of community and belonging. That is why first and foremost it is the mission of the Krakow UNESCO City of Literature Office to invigorate a passion for reading and literature among people of every age group and background as well as to provide a comprehensive and diverse literary education offer available to every citizen and visitor of Krakow.

This goal is achieved by stimulating and supporting individual creativity, connecting and integrating the local and international creative sectors, and systematically supporting the book industry at all levels, so as to elevate the quality of literary output and events, improve and guarantee equal access to cultural goods and creation, boost confidence and broaden horizons, and secure and popularise the literary heritage of Krakow and the Małopolska region.

Leveraging membership in the UCCN, we hope to use the programme as a mechanism which contributes to (1) building an open, creative, well-educated and literate community; (2) broadening access to literary culture goods and works, in particular to underrepresented groups; (3) supporting the Polish book market and related creative hubs; and (4) cultivating and protecting the literary heritage of the city and Krakow’s position as a global City of Literature.

The 2017-2021 strategic plan will encapsulate five key areas:
1. Programme

The Krakow UNESCO City of Literature Programme reflects the diversity of Krakow's literary sector, supplements it in areas that are in need of support, and engages a wide range of partners in order to guarantee proper representation and social engagement, to connect and integrate stakeholders, and to ensure that the local, national and international dimensions of activities are bolstered and developed. Moreover, it aims to not only protect the vast literary heritage of the city, but also to utilize it for future creative and educational endeavors that will safeguard the foundations of our UNESCO Creative City.

Objectives of the KUCL Programme include:

A. To develop literary education programmes for Krakow's diverse communities and all readers
B. To support the development of talent, as well as the professionalization of the literary sector
C. To create a comprehensive, year-round offer of literary events that reflect the diversity of literature's genres, elevate the literary arts and promote dialogue on a national and international level
D. To deepen the interconnections between literature and other creative fields
E. To advance programmes of support for the local and national book industry
F. To protect and nurture Krakow's literary heritage and the memory of its important figures
